VINECULTURE

Sémillon – It's thinned skinned and can sometimes get a little sunburnt when produced in the hotter areas. Is common in The Hunter Valley, Australia and is quite often also seen in Bordeaux. You will see some New Zealand Sauvignon Blancs have it added especially from Hawke's Bay to help fatten up and add fig, lemon, saffron, hazelnut characters as a point of difference to straight Marlborough Sauvignon Blancs.

VINECULTURE

Chenin Blanc

– Americans discovered. Made in the style of the day, fragrant and lightly sweet and also easy. Nearly all the truly memorable Chenin Blancs are French. No matter the style, a certain floral, honeyed character, along with zesty acidity are the sensory trademarks of well-made Chenin Blanco. Chenin Blanc is arguably the most versatile of all wine grape varieties.

HUAPAI

Coopers Creek The Clays	2008	11.00	50.00
-------------------------	------	-------	-------

Grenache

– From the home of Southern Rhone – France, it loves hot, dry areas and is normally the backbone to a lot of red blends. It is fleshy, heady and offers blackcurrant and blackberry characters.

MACLAREN VALE

Yalumba 'Bush Vine'	2007		50.00
---------------------	------	--	-------

Tempranillo

– Mainly from Northern Spain arises from the word Tempreno meaning early which drives this early ripening variety to produce full body, low acidity wines with berry, plum, tobacco, vanilla, herb and leather characters! Stop It!!

ESCAPE UNDER THE TUSCAN SUN

Chianti

– Is Italy's most famous red wine, which takes its name from a traditional region of Tuscany where it is produced, made from 70% Sangiovese, 15% Canaiolo, strawberry, ink and leather with colour to roll, and 15% Malvasia Bianco which is aromatic, dark-skinned. Aged Chianti (38 months instead of 4-7), may be labelled as Riserva.
